Joe Noble, MA, LMFT

Joe Noble is a Minnesota board licensed marriage and family therapist (LMFT) and Board-certified State Supervisor. He is co-founder and partner of Bridging Parental Conflict® and continues to be an instructor of the program. He is co-founder and managing partner of The Bridging Center in Edina, MN, where he practices systemic relational therapy with conflicted families. In addition to practicing family therapy, Joe is a family mediator, a qualified neutral under Rule 114 of the Minnesota General Rules of Practice, certified Child-Inclusive Mediator, and parenting and co-parenting coach.

Lori Thibodeau, MA, LMFT

Lori is a business owner, trainer, speaker, and mental health professional. She has many years of experience working with systems that struggle with organizational conflict, parental conflict, parent-child conflict, divorce, parent-child separation, and mental health disorders. Her education is in counseling and psychotherapy and licensure by the Minnesota board of marriage and family therapy. She works in private practice at The Bridging Center specializing in family systems experiencing divorce, family conflict, and co-parenting issues. Her career focus is promoting individual and systemic health in families.

Session 1 & Session 2:

Understanding Complex and Conflicted

Family Systems

This presentation explains the underlying systemic dynamics of families facing intractable conflict and complex co-parenting matters, for example, Parent Child Resist Refuse (PCRR) relationship problems. It explains and defines the need for interdisciplinary cooperation among professionals to help families correct the dynamic, and explains why without an interdisciplinary approach, families dealing with complex matters remain stuck. This presentation also provides ways of conceptualizing the problem and some general approaches and tools for successfully engaging a family dealing with conflict.
